The Newport Mercury.

John F. Anderson, Editor and Proprietor.
SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 18, 1882

The Canadian Scholastic are flourishing.

Cleveland's majority in New York State is placed at 191,000.

James G. Blaine declares that he is not a candidate for the Presidency. This causes joy to other aspirants.

Dakota is reasonably safe at any rate. John B. Raymond, Republican candidate for delegate, is credited with a majority of 25,000.

Like Mr. Blaine, General Butler declines any intention on his part of becoming the next President of the United States. Better watch him through.

Governor-elect Pattison of Philadelphia aspires to absorb the Independent party, and will distribute the official patronage between the Democrats and Independents.

The Connecticut Congressmen, deliberating in General Conference, have decided that drunkenness is more of a disease than a crime. It possesses characteristics of each.

Wm. R. Travers has bought Hon. Jas. G. Blaine's residence at Washington, and proposes to entertain royally this winter, all in the interest of Senator Bayard for President.

Unofficial returns from all but one county in North Carolina show the election of three Republican Congressmen. The Democratic Congressman-Large is only 373 ahead in the State.

The next House of Representatives will have no less than fifty contested cases. It's the fashion nowadays for candidates defeated by small majorities to contest, in the expectation of being seated by party friends.

The Boston Traveller attributes the Republican victory in New Hampshire largely to the fact that New Hampshire's Representatives in both Senate and House voted to sustain the veto of the River and Harbor bill.

The defaulting cashier of the Ashcroft Savings bank at Manchester, N. H., has received a deserved sentence of fifteen years' imprisonment. The severest punishment should always be meted out to the embezzler of trust funds.

Mr. Patterson, the Democratic Governor-elect of Pennsylvania, declares with emphasis that "the man who raises his hand against the industries of the State by advocating free trade had better hang a millstone about his neck and jump into the sea."

The irrepressible Faxon of Massachusetts throws some light on the political situation when he declares: "I never believe in having a party with ideas and putting in your opponents to carry out the principles." The Republicans have done what Mr. Faxon doesn't believe in.

Talking It Over.

The politicians and statesmen of the two parties are busily engaged just now, the Republicans in expiating or defending their defeat, and telling what it means, and the Democrats in informing one another how good they must be in order to elect a Democratic President two years from now. It is interesting to note how varied are the utterances of the Republican leaders. Speaker Keifer makes light of his party's overthrow, and thinks things will be all right in 1884. He finds some disaffection but expects with confidence that a little oiling will set the various machines in good working order. Hon. James G. Blaine is also hopeful of the party's future, but only on the supposition that it regains the confidence of the people. And here lies the problem. Thoughtful Republicans everywhere see the necessity for liberalizing the party. It must be furnished with strong and aggressive policy. It must, as it has in the past, take the lead in reform in all departments. If it goes to work sincerely for the country, the people will gladly continue it in power, and the offices will take care of themselves. It is idle to underestimate the gravity of the situation. Energetic measures must be taken, else the Republican party will surely go out of power.

The Democrats are unduly elated over their victory, which came to them because of a want of confidence in the Republican party and not because of confidence in the Democratic party. The leaders have all taken a new lease of life, and are complacently smiling over coming spoils. They have a task fully as arduous as that confronting their opponents, in order to hold the people. It is the people who propose now to rule, and it matters little to this class of independent voters, whether they support Democrats or Republicans, as long as they secure good government. That is the thing chiefly desired. If the Democrats behave themselves—an unlikely contingency—they can win in 1884, but only on that condition. It behooves their leaders, therefore, to lay aside their strife for office, and devise ways and means for making our government better in every respect where it is now lacking. If they are so happy as to not themselves to this task with earnestness and sincerity, they will deserve the victory that will then surely await them.

The Most Recent Bill.

The Garfield board of audit have received all sorts and kinds of bills for services in connection with the sickness and death of President Garfield, but it was reserved for a Washington glazier to join in the appellation of Christopher Flogeketten, to present to the board the most unique of all the bills. He has written a letter in which he states that he has one of the bullets fired at the late President. According to his story, the bullet lodged in his glass and putty box and shattered its contents. Although sustaining this loss, he generously says that he is far from making any claim against the estate, but he ingenuously expresses the hope that the board will assist him in his endeavor to make an honest living by securing his appointment as watchman or something similar in one of the government departments. What special claim has been created against the Government in favor of Christopher Flogeketten by the lodging of a bullet in his putty box, it is not easy to discover, but his request is in the line of rewards now so much in favor. As long as the Government is a general pension bureau for the reward of party services, irrespective of merit, so long will fellows of the Christopher Flogeketten stamp confidently and impudently prefer their requests.

In response to suggestions that the Republican party is dead, the New York Graphic says: "Let this Lamberian corpse alone for a few minutes, fellow-citizens. It is too handsome, too generally sweet to be buried out of sight with excessive rapidity. It may be dead nine times over, and have not a life left wherewith to bless itself; but then, this may be a case of napping with the purpose to view of eventually creating astonishment, rather than sympathy. Put up at the foot of the sheet covering the apparently inanimate remains the sign 'Danger,' and make the word large. Keep away from that corpse! It might kick."

A scene which occasioned quite a sensation occurred Tuesday in the Globe Theatre, London, during the performance of Tennyson's new pastoral drama, "The Promise of May." Among those present was the Marquis of Queensberry, who is an avowed free thinker. He rose excitedly from his seat and loudly protested against Tennyson's representation of the principles of free thought, enunciated by one of the characters of the play. At the desire of an official the Marquis left the theatre amid much confusion.

An infuriated parrot at Dixon Springs, Ill., incensed at the playfulness of his six-year-old daughter, tormented her so severely that the child began crying, whereupon the father knocked the little girl down and stamped upon her until death came to her relief. The race of fowls is not extinct.

A disastrous gale raged on the English coast on Thursday. A brig was lost with all hands off St. Ives; a small vessel is ashore in St. Ives bay; another vessel was totally wrecked at Hoyle and five pilots were drowned while attempting to reach a distressed vessel in Firth of Forth.

Burglars entered the residence of a farmer in Jepson, Indiana, Tuesday night, and after a terrible struggle murdered the man, his wife and one child, the entire family, and carried away $2000 in gold. A posse of 100 citizens is chasing the murderers.

The Richmond (Va.) Whig (Read.) claims for the Mahone party that "the money-line, the class-line, color-line, and the sectional-line have all been obliterated in politics by our great liberal movement."

Near Lynchburg, Va., lives Mr. Adolphus Coleman, 73 years old, who carries his age so well that he can jump higher than any of his seven sons, and can outrun any of them in a race of 100 yards.

In Louisville it has been proved to the satisfaction of the apothecaries that women make better drug clerks than men, and the Louisville school of pharmacy is now open to students of both sexes.

The corrected returns show that the next House of Representatives will comprise 200 Democrats and 125 Republicans. Seventy-five is a fair working majority beyond the shadow of a doubt.

The tide rose so high at Venice on the 27th of October that all the streets were under water, and gondolas were actually plying in the Square of St. Mark.

Governor Pattison of Pennsylvania tells the truth when he says that his election is as much a protest against Democratic as Republican machine methods.

No fewer than seventy-nine prizes, including sixteen gold and twenty-nine silver medals, were awarded to Australians at the International Wine Exhibition at Bordeaux.

Another ocean horror is reported. The steamer Angelica, bound from Gales, Sweden, to Hull, England, has foundered in the North Sea, and forty persons were drowned.

The Georgia legislature has elected Pope Barrow for the short term and Gov. Colquhoun for the long term in the United States Senate.

Accidents.

The steamer City of Worcester ran down a barge in the East River of New York Thursday evening, and seven persons were drowned.

A man named Askey, living five miles from the village of Walcott, Dakota Territory, was frozen to death Thursday morning.

Two children of the Rev. Mr. Glenwood, Methodist minister, aged 11 and 14 years, were drowned in the Des Moines river, at Windom, Minn., Thursday, breaking through the ice while skating.

Oscar Wilde says: "Ningara Falls seemed to me to be simply a vast, unnecessary amount of water going the wrong way and then falling over unnecessary rocks." We fear it is too late now to change it to please Oscar.

To remove the unnecessary rocks and cause the water to run the other way would require a larger expenditure of money than the river and harbor bill appropriated, but Congress may favorably consider the matter when the Democrats get in power.

It seems that pious David Davis will have to step out of the U. S. Senate at the expiration of his term. The Republicans having a majority of from twelve to sixteen on joint ballot in the Illinois Legislature, so that a Republican will be elected in his place. The Republicans are likely to have the control of the Senate for the remainder of Mr. Arthur's term.

There is a conflict between the New York, West Shore and Buffalo and the Chenango Valley and New York Railroad Companies, in Syracuse, over some rights and property, and Judge Wallace, of the United States Circuit Court, has granted an injunction restraining the West Shore Company from interfering with the property of the Chenango Valley Road.

An acute observer asserts that John McCullough, the actor, added ten years to his acting career by his recent trip through the Yellowstone region with General Sheridan's party. He rode 443 miles in the saddle, and came back trained down like an athlete and in buoyant spirits.

Mr. George Bancroft, the historian, has lately bought another Kentucky horse for $1,000, on which he rides daily in Washington. It is a very gentle animal, and is named Pippa. His other Kentucky horse, purchased about two years ago, is lame, and taking a vacation at his place in Newport.

Congressman-elect John J. Finney, of Chicago, was until within a year, a reporter of the Times of that city. He has been in many an Indian fight as a special correspondent, and two years ago was present at the celebrated council held between Gen. Miles and Sitting Bull on Canadian soil.

Why do all Americans say "deeper" for station?—English Tourists. We don't. Some of us say deppo, others say dappo, and a few others depot. Now, tell us why you Englishmen say "you know" every six words, when you know we don't know, you know. Philadelphia News.

There is nothing like being in time. The St. Louis Post-Dispatch gayly projects itself into the dim and politically misty future with this ticket for 1884: "For President, Grover Cleveland, of New York; for Vice President, Joseph McDonald, of Indiana."

The free canal amendment in New York State was adopted at last week's election by over 200,000 majority. The canal, in point of business, are at a low ebb, but it is hoped that under the stimulus of no tolls, their old prosperity will be regained.

There may be something of the irony of fate in it, but some of the Bay State Yankees appear to feel as much disgusted at being buttered as did the Confederates of New Orleans in the old war days. And the Crescent City says to the "Hub," "Now you know how it is yourself."

This is the first season for nearly thirty years when there has been no snow in Iowa earlier in November than the present time. Pansies, Drummond pinks and sweet peas are in full bloom in the open air at the State capital.

Johann Gottfried Kinkel, the distinguished theologian poet, and professor of fine arts, also noted for his participation in the revolutionary movements in Rhenish Prussia in 1848, died a day or two since at Zurich, Switzerland.

The Republican majority for governor in New Hampshire is 580. The Republicans have 18 out of 24 senators. The house of representatives will stand 188 Republicans 114 Democrats 3 Independents and 2 Greenbackers.

Judge Hoffman, of the United States court at San Francisco, decides that Chinese merchants cannot be debarred from this country under the anti-Chinese law.

Official returns from every county in Pennsylvania give Pattison, Democrat, for Governor, a plurality over Beaver, Republican, of 59,047.

Speedily leaves the surface of teeth upon which the clearest and most preservative influence of ROZODONT is thereby exerted. No form of decay can infect a set of "teeth" upon which it is used. It has, moreover, a most refreshing effect upon the mouth, in which it leaves a very agreeable taste, besides rendering the breath fragrant. If the month be placed with it after smoking, the taste of the tobacco is entirely obliterated. As an auxiliary to personal cleanliness it cannot too highly be extolled. Sold by druggists.

In 1841 there was no railroad which carried produce into New York city.

Did She Die?
"So she lingered and suffered along, pining away for no good; and at last was cured by this Hop Bitters the papers say so much of. Indeed! Indeed! how thankful we should be for that medicine."

Two men were murdered by gamblers they had won money from in St. Joseph, Mo., the other night.

If there ever was a appetite for any one complaint, then Carson's Little Liver Pills are a specific for sick headache, and every woman should know this. Only one pill a dose. Sold by J. E. Gifford.

Frederick G. P. Whilow and Naval Constructor Thomas E. Webb made a salutary examination of the Potomac recently, and found the vessel in reasonably proper condition.

Pell, Miss Janet Alexander, Miss J. P. After the death of these persons he gives one-third of his estate for the establishment of a hospital, in the discretion of trustees, one-third to the presidents of Harvard and Yale universities and the Smithsonian Institution for the establishment of scholarships for poor students, and one-third to the laboring poor of England and Italy as his executors may direct.

NEWPORT OPERA HOUSE.

Irish Aristocracy at Muldoon's Picnic.

This popular play will be presented next Thursday. The Erie Herald declares:

It is safe to say that there are about 1800 people in this city to-day who are walking around with aching sides as the result of last night's laughter at the antics and funny sayings of Hugh Fay and Billy Barry at the Opera House as Muldoon and Muldoon in "Irish Aristocracy."

"One of the Finest."
Next Tuesday evening Gus Williams, one of the most successful character actors on the stage, will appear as the policeman in his great burlesque of "One of the Finest." It has everywhere been well received. The Buffalo Courier says:

The run of "One of the Finest" here, and its success, never slackened, and though at times the scorching heat rendered insupportable the interest of the public, the play, weakened, and, with the advent of the first cool nights, the business would run up to its old figure.

Death of Geo. A. Osgood.

Mr. George A. Osgood, a well known summer resident of Newport, who spent last season at the Ocean House, died on Monday at his home, No. 19 East Twenty-first street, New York, aged about 62 years. He was born in Baltimore, Md., of New England lineage, and was graduated from Harvard College in 1831. He came to New York at an early age, and engaged in the coal business, supplying coal to several steamship lines, and being brought into intimate relations with Commodore Vanderbilt, whose daughter Eliza, he married. About the opening of the War of the Rebellion he became interested in Wall-street operations, and was afterward a partner in several prominent firms of brokers. He was a trustee of the New York Life Insurance Company, and one of the largest stockholders of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad.

Mr. Osgood was an old member of the New York Yacht club, and built the noted yacht Fleeting, which he kept till he built his steam yacht, the Stranger. His wife survives him, but he leaves no children.

The celebrated (formerly Scotch) yacht Madge, has recently undergone alterations at the hands of Thomas D. Stoddard, boat builder, on Long wharf. A cock-pit has been made sufficiently large to accommodate six persons comfortably. She was towed to Somerset on Tuesday, by the schooner Mary H. Morris, Capt. Pike, in order that she might be taken out of water, for cleaning her bottom. She was also to be measured in order to receive the prizes said to have been won by her since her arrival in this country, but which have never been received by her owner up to the present time.

The late eccentric Russian Minister to this country, M. Bartholomew, and his no less peculiar wife, have had to give up another diplomatic post, but this time before going to it. He was accredited to Japan, but the news of his idiosyncrasies having reached that country, it was made evident that he would be unwelcome, and the Russian Government decided to keep him at home. M. Bartholomew's peculiar performances in Newport are well known.

We have received from the U. S. Treasury Department, "The Fourteenth Annual List of Merchant Vessels in the United States. For the year ended June 30, 1882." This list embraces 24,733 vessels, classified as follows: sailing vessels, 16,429; steam vessels, 8,304; unrigged vessels, 2,648. It also includes a list of all vessels belonging to the navy, the revenue marine, the lighthouse board, and the coast and geodetic survey, and is a particularly valuable document.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

From all Parts of the World.

A Postmaster's Reckoning.

Col. F. L. Loring, ex-Postmaster of Dayton, Ohio, Monday committed suicide by cutting an artery. It appears that there was a delusion of $3,427 in his accounts as Postmaster, which his sureties will have to pay. This so preyed on his mind that he took his life. Colonel Loring attempted to commit suicide three times before.

A Des Moines Dynamite Sensation.

A sensation was caused at Des Moines, Ia., on Sunday, by the finding of dynamite at the International Distillery. In the morning a letter was received by William Smith, one of the foremen, which read: "There are fifty pounds of dynamite in the masher. It will explode at 140 degrees Fahrenheit, or a slight jar will explode it. Notify the men, but don't show this letter to any one. This is no bogus play. We mean business. If you follow instructions there will be danger to no one when it is all taken out, but to Habbitt." A search party found several cylinders of dynamite in the ingress and egress pipes of the engine. Yesterday the whole building was carefully gone over, and nine more packages, weighing 8½ ounces each, were found. Various warnings scrawled with chalk were also found on the walls. One arrest was made, and warrants have been issued for others. It seems that Mr. Kidd and Habbitt & Co., the latter owning mashers and leaving them to be used on a percentage, had a dispute about the yield of the distillery, and Habbitt & Co. undertook to remove the mashers. Mr. Kidd now suspects Habbitt of being in the plot, and has sworn out a warrant for his arrest.

Various Matters.

The main boiler of the Forest City Iron Works, operated by Atkins & Clark, at the Union Crossing, Newburg, exploded Monday while the day men were going from their work, killing three or four men and fatally wounding several others. The mill was wrecked.—A fire in Minneapolis, Minn., Monday, caused a loss of $127,700. The Knickerbocker block was badly damaged.—Three men entered a Sixth Avenue car, in New York soon after midnight Tuesday morning. The conductor paid little attention to them, suspecting them to be passengers, when suddenly they seized him, and despite his struggles and called for assistance, robbed him of his money, badge, and register. There were passengers in the car, but they remained quiet and made no move to assist the victim of the thieves.

Condensation.—Sleighting on the Red River of the North Monday.—A frost in Texas and Louisiana lifts the yellow fever quarantine.—Louis Olen, a wealthy citizen of Minneapolis, fatally shot his wife in New York, Sunday, while crazed with rum.—The steamship Westphalia, from New York for Hamburg, collided with an unknown steamship, off the Isle of Wight, Monday morning, and put into Portsmouth in a sinking condition. The other steamship is supposed to have gone down with all on board, and a boat that left the Westphalia, in search of her, is missing.—The fast train leaving New York at 10:30 Monday morning while passing Peekskill ran into a locomotive which was crossing the track. The engine and drawing room car of the fast train were buried from the track and three passengers injured.

Notes from Here and There.—The Queen of Spain has a new daughter.—The Republican majority in Illinois for State Treasurer is estimated at about 7500, and the Republican majority in the Legislature now appears to be 12.—U. S. Judge Nelson decides that Long Island Sound is a part of the Atlantic Ocean, and not governed by the provisions of the act regulating the navigation of inland waters. The decision will knock some of the claims of Connecticut and New York out of water.

Partons of Husbandry.—The seventeenth annual session of the National Grange of Patrons of Husbandry began its session in Indianapolis Wednesday. Thirty-two States are represented in the convention. Among the delegates present are Governor Frederick Robie, of Maine, and Congressman Aiken, of South Carolina. The sessions are secret and will continue until the end of next week. A public meeting was held Wednesday night at the court-house, at which addresses of welcome were delivered by Governor Porter and Mayor Grubbs and responses made by prominent members of the order.

Matters of Interest.—The wreck of a construction train near Kansas City, on the Alton road, Monday evening, caused the death of three and the injury of many other persons.—Gov. Cameron has decided to commute to imprisonment for life the death sentence of Mary Booth, a colored girl, convicted in Surrey county, Va., of poisoning the wife of R. C. Gray and his overseer, Jones. She was to have been hanged on Friday.—A German bark was wrecked off Gunfleet Wednesday, and ten persons drowned.—Canada is now moving for free canals.—A package supposed to contain $30,000 worth of diamonds, received at the New York custom house from the steamship city of Chester, proved to be simply stuffed with paper, the gems having been stolen probably before the box was delivered on board the steamer.

Pear Blight.

The blight of the pear tree is still one of the unsolved mysteries among horticulturists. Those pear trees seem to be the most subject to blight which grow in an over-moist or too rich soil that stimulates to a late second growth. Such late growth, being liable to be frost bitten in the winter, supplies the poison to blight the tree. Hence this form of blight is found to be more expensive and destructive in the deep rich soils of the West than the dry open soils of the East. This will also be the case in over-rich soils unless the trees are checked by root pruning. The seckel pear is given as an example of a pear that seldom blights, for the reason that it makes short-jointed growth and ripens its wood early. The remedies for pear blight, according to Charles Downing, are mainly preventive:

1. Avoid everything that tends to encourage a late second growth. Do not plant in damp soils. Avoid leaving hollows around and near the trees to collect the water and to soak the soil. Do not put on any summer top-dressing that is likely to stimulate too late growth. Choose for your soil one that is dry, but not too rich, that your trees may make good growth in time to ripen the wood fully.

2. Reject, in blighted districts, such varieties as are found to make late growths, and choose those that ripen their wood fully before autumn.

3. When it is evident from the nature of the season and the soil that there is likely to be a late growth, lay bare the roots of trees for two or three weeks, or prune the roots to check growth. The use of lime as a fertilizer is recommended as having a tendency to throw all fruit trees into the production of short-jointed fruit spurs, instead of long luxuriant shoots.

4. When the disease has actually appeared, the only remedy seems to be the knife and the saw, most vigorously applied, to eradicate every symptom of diseased and discolored bark or wood. If you would save your tree, cut at once on the first apparent symptom of the disease, and be sure you cut it clean out.

Putting Away Tools.

The wearing out of farm implements is, as a rule, due more to neglect than to use. If tools can be well taken care of, it will pay to buy those made of the best steel, and finished in the best manner; but in common hands, and with common care, such are of little advantage. Iron and steel parts should be cleaned with dry sand and a cob, or scraped with a piece of soft iron, washed and oiled if necessary, and in a day or two cleaned off with the corn-cob and dry sand. Finally paint the iron part with rosin and beeswax, in the proportion of 4 of rosin to 1 of wax, melted together and applied hot. This is good for the iron or steel parts of every sort of tool. Wood work should be painted with good, boiled linseed oil, white lead and turpentine, colored of any desired tint; red is probably the best color. Keep the cattle away until the paint is dry and hard, or they will lick, with death as the result. If it is not desired to use paint on hand tools, the boiled oil with turpentine and "liquid drier," does just as well. Many prefer to saturate the wood-work of farm implements with crude petroleum. This can not be used with color, but is applied by itself, so long as any is absorbed by the pores of the wood.

The Heifer.

I am convinced, says a correspondent of the New York "Tribune," by an experience of near fifty years, that it is well to tie the legs of every heifer, no matter how gentle, for a short time, say a week or ten days, as a part of her discipline and training when being learned to milk. She will never forget it when a large strong cow, and then if her tests get scratched or chapped so that she must be tied to be milked, she will submit with a very good grace, otherwise she may object as strongly as one of ours did awhile ago. We attempted to tie her legs; she reared up behind, both feet, like a mule, causing one or two of us to make elevated as well as rapid transit.

AMERICAN LADIES.
The first impression Sara Bernhardt received of the American ladies manifested itself thus:—"Oh! these ladies, as are so beautiful, such delicate complexion I never saw before," all of which is due to the universal use of Swaine's Ointment for skin diseases, which restores a clear and clean complexion, and a healthy color. This recalls to mind the divine precept "Cleanliness is next to Godliness."

Agricultural Notes and Hints.

The first Hereford cattle imported into this country were brought over in 1815 by Henry Clay for his Kentucky farm.

The annual cheese product of the United States, for an average good season, is now estimated at 400,000,000 pounds, and the butter product at 1,200,000,000 pounds.

Holstein cows were shown in larger numbers than ever before at the New York State Fair and at most other fairs. This is significant of the increasing popularity of this excellent breed.

The Hungarians look upon the deficiency of this year's Spanish wheat crop as a favorable opportunity for them to extend their flour trade. The duty, however, is practically prohibitory, amounting to $2 per sack of 280 pounds.

No fixed nutritive value can be applied to fodder crops, or to the hay made from them, as both their composition and digestibility are largely influenced by their age and condition when cut. The young plant is always the most nutritive.

An experienced pear grower prefers Bartlett for profit. Their only drawback is a tendency to blight, but they pay for themselves and for new trees to put in their place. The Bartlett is not the highest flavored pear, but good enough to be always profitable.

While fodder crops deteriorate towards maturity, from the conversion of soluble carbo-hydrates into fibre, crops such as potatoes and mangels improve, the carbo-hydrates produced in their case being respectively starch and sugar, both of them substances of great feeding value.

Buying wheat bran and cottonseed meal for feeding milch cows, in connection with fodder grown on the farm, is one method of buying fertilizers for the soil. When large quantities of either of these grains are purchased, fed judiciously and the manure saved, a farm should not grow poorer, even though the milk be sold for cheese-making.

Ironing.

As soon as the clothes are brought from the line I sit down by the basket and fold carefully and smoothly everything that is not starched, and lay one on top of the other in the basket and let them remain until the next day. Their own weight will make them smooth; if something heavy is laid on top they will be nicer still. Sheets, pillow-cases, counterpanes, towels, cotton napkins, and all the plain undergarments of the household, I manage in this way, and they look much better than any one would think who has not tried it. When I take them from the basket, I hang them on the clothes-bars to air. Then, with a gas stove to iron the starched clothes by, the ironing is really a small matter. I think there are many things more needful for mothers to do than to spend so much time and strength every week, to say nothing of the expense of fuel, in ironing every garment with so much care when it makes nobody any better or happier. Mrs. Grundy to the contrary notwithstanding. When the clothes are taken from the line they may be laid in order, towels together, pillow-cases together, all nice folded and laid on top of each other in the basket. This saves one handling, and saves, too, a good many wrinkles. If the clothes are allowed to remain out for a little time after the dew falls, they will need no dampening before ironing.—Ex.

Tarnished Silverware.

Solid silverware, as well as plated goods, grows dark and tarnished in a very short time when exposed to the air, and even when put away in a dark place. This is especially the case where hard coal is used in the house or neighborhood, as the sulphur in the coal, liberated by the heat, is sure to stain all the silverware within reach.

This annoying tarnishing can be entirely prevented by painting the silverware with a soft brush dipped into alcohol in which some collodium had been dissolved. The liquid dries immediately and forms a thin, transparent and absolutely invisible coating upon the silver, which completely protects it from all effects of the atmosphere, etc. It can be removed at any time by dipping the article in hot water. This recipe has been in use for some time in the large establishments at London, where most of the goods in the show-cases are protected in this manner.—[Mechanical News.]

Be Healthy and Handsome.

Young women: It is difficult to think of a picture more grateful to the eye than yourself, as you pass upon the street in becoming costume; you are handsome you'll agree, but are you taking that care of your health which will make you a forte, when you are the mother of a fine family of children, a robust, handsome woman, looking even better than you do now? You are? We don't believe it, and you don't either. No young woman can rise in the middle of the forenoon, read trashy novels, take no exercise except an occasional promenade, eat sweetmeats, do no work, and keep late hours, and at the same time lay a foundation for good health at forty. It is all very well to be handsome at twenty, but to be healthy and handsome, both, at forty, is more greatly to be desired.—[New Haven Register.]

Household Hints.

A TSCHI, OR CABBAGE SOUP.—A LA RUSSIE.—First cut four onions into small dice, and fry them in a little butter in a stew-pan, over a slow fire, and when they assume a light yellow-brown color add to these a white heart cabbage which has been previously shred for the purpose, and, after having continued to fry this also with the onions for about ten minutes, two tablespoonfuls of flour should be added; stir the whole well together, moistening with three pints of good consommé; season with a little nutmeg and mignonette pepper, and after the soup has boiled gently by the side of the stove for an hour, in order to clarify it, let it be well skimmed, and previously to sending the soup to table, and a pinch of tarragon leaves and some lemon juice; previously to pouring the tschi into the soup-tureen, place therein about three dozen small sausages made in the manner following, viz: To four ounces of lean fillet of beef add an equal quantity of beef suet; first chop and then pound these well together in a mortar, season with grated nutmeg, pepper, and salt, and some chopped parsley; add three yolks of eggs, mix well together by pounding the whole 10 minutes longer, after which proceed to roll the sausage meat into small round or oval shapes the size of a cob-nut, and after frying these of a light color in a little clarified butter, use them as directed above.

GRAHAM BREAD.—One quart of warm water, one small cup of hop yeast made into a sponge with wheat flour, and let rise over night. In the morning add four tablespoonfuls of molasses, one teaspoonful of salt, and graham flour as thick as can be stirred with a spoon; let it rise again, and bake in a moderate oven.

SPONGE CAKE.—Two eggs, one cup of sugar beaten to a froth, four tablespoonfuls of cream or water, one and one-half cups of flour, in which mix one teaspoonful of cream of tartar, one half teaspoonful of soda dissolved in the cream or water, and flavor with lemon. It must be beaten after the water has been added, but stir lightly.

CHOCOLATE CREAM DIPS.—Dissolve two cups of white sugar in one-half cup of boiling water, boil from three to five minutes, and flavor with vanilla. Set the pan in cold water, and when it cools beat the sugar till it creams, then mould into balls the size of a nutmeg and set away on buttered pans to cool; melt one-half a cake of chocolate, add a little sugar, and into this dip the balls of sugar until they are coated.

COFFEE CAKE.—One-half cup of butter, one-half cup of sugar, one-half cup of molasses, one-half cup of cold coffee, one egg, two and one-half cups of flour, one scant teaspoonful of soda, one cup of raisins, and spice to taste. This makes one good sized loaf.

SCOTCH SHORTBREAD.—Half a pound of flour, half a pound of sugar, half a pound of butter; the butter and sugar to be melted together, and the flour dredged in.

PLAIN CAKE.—Three quarters pound of flour; the same of moist sugar, quarter pound of butter, one egg, two tablespoonfuls of milk. Mix all together and bake it.

ROLED LEKES.—Wash, trim and cut the leeks in equal lengths; split each in two, then tie in small bunches, put them in boiling water with a little salt; boil twenty minutes, or till tender, removing any scum which may arise, drain, and serve them on toast with melted butter.

LEMON PUFFS.—Time, six or eight minutes to bake. One pound and a quarter of loaf sugar; peel off two lemons; whites of three eggs. Beat and sift a pound and a quarter of loaf sugar, and mix it with the peel of two lemons grated; whip the whites of three eggs to a firm froth, add it gradually to the sugar and lemon, and beat it all together for one hour. Make it up into any shape you please, place the puffs on oiled paper on a tin, put them in a moderate oven and bake.
